Principal Speaks:

I am privileged to receive the information that the publication cell of M.C. College has taken the initiative to publish the college newsletter for the session 2020-21. I welcome and appreciate the effort taken by the publication cell. Like the previous year, this time also we have missed the congenial academic atmosphere in our college. Our experience was not good at all. Because of the pandemic, we couldn't accomplish our development projects timely. We couldn't go for offline classes. Even students had to appear in the examinations in online mode only. The result is that both students and teachers had to bear a lot of troubles. However, they faced each and every challenge boldly. Those who had successfully carried on their responsibility even under the threats of calamities are the appropriate persons for the appreciation. They are the pride of our college. I, being the head of the institution convey my sincere gratitude to all of them. Hope, this volume of Newsletter will successfully highlight the glorious moments of our college.

Principal, M.C. College, Barpeta

From the Editor's Desk:

The second wave of covid-19 pandemic has further paralysed the conventional education system in India. Students have once again been deprived of being present in physical classroom environment and had to confine themselves within the periphery of digital classroom. Teachers have also become confined within the digital system. But that confinement could not prevent both student and teacher community from achieving their desired goal. The intellectual practice has continued through the digital media. Classes are continued along with involvement in organising and attending seminar, conference, workshop, short term course and various faculty development programmes on online mode.

The current issue of the Newsletter reflects all intellectual practices of the college during a crucial period. Each news and event of each of the pages of the newsletter carries the glory of the institution in a crucial period of the century proving the fact once again that nothing is impossible.
