Report on the Educational Tour to Bhoirabkunda by

Dept. of Political Science

Date: 01/02/2021

With due respect, it is hereby reported that the Dept. of Political Science, M.C. College, Barpeta, Assam successfully conducted an Educational Tour to Bhoirabkunda, Udalguri, Assam on 31st Jan 2021. The tour was mainly conducted for the major/honours students of the department. A group of major/honours students (both CBCS & Non-CBCS) comprising of 1st, 3rd & 5th semester participated in the tour together with faculty members of the department.

Bhoirabkunda is a popular picnic spot in Udalguri district of Assam. It is located on the border of Bhutan and Arunachal Pradesh, near the Bhutanese town of Daifam. The Jampani river, originating in Bhutan and Bhairabi river merge here to form Dhansiri river which is a major tributary of Brahmaputra River. An irrigation project was constructed on Dhansiri river at Bhoirabkunda and within the jurisdiction of Bodoland Territorial Region (B.T.R.). Being located at the Indo-Bhutan international border, thousands of picnickers visit this place from November to early February. Gethsemane man-made forest is also another major attraction of this place. Bhoirabkunda Tourism Festival is organized during the month of January every year to promote tourism and expose the vibrant culture of the locality. It was a fruitful experience for the touring group truly complemented by natural beauty of Bhoirabkunda and its surroundings.
